Christmas Eve Coffee

Albuquerque police officers who were on duty Christmas Eve were treated to coffee, cookies, pies and donuts through the efforts of the Albuquerque chapter of B'nai B'rith. The organization set up tables in the police station lounge to serve refreshments to officers coming in from shifts and those beginning patrol. Marty Rubinstein, president of B'nai B'rith Lodge 336, pours coffee for Policewoman Pam Beck during the three-hour period Wednesday night. It was the second year for the program here. (Journal Photo by Jerry McCullough)